

U.S. DEPARTMENT of STATE

CRITICAL LANGUAGE SCHOLARSHIP

The Critical Language Scholarship (CLS) Program is a funded summer opportunity for American college and university students to learn languages essential to America's engagement with the world.

The CLS Program offers both study abroad and virtual learning opportunities:

- Study abroad and learn one of a dozen critical languages at a variety of levels
- Or take virtual classes to start your language journey in Arabic, Chinese, Korean, Japanese, or Russian through CLS Spark.

Either way, the program can develop your language skills and provide credit towards graduation.

Languages include Arabic, Chinese, Hindi, Indonesian, Japanese, Korean, Persian, Portuguese, Russian, Swahili, Turkish, and Urdu.

For information on the selection process, visit: www.clscholarship.org/selection

For assistance with your application, talk with the representative on your campus:

Name:

Contact:

Location:

Applications are due each fall for the following summer.

www.clscholarship.org/apply

CLS is a program of the U.S. Department of State with funding provided by the U.S. Government and supported in its implementation by American Councils for International Education.