Bart and the caller discuss this situation in terms of equity vs probable ranges and also the fact that they are so deep in this heavily restricted buy in scenario to other considerations come into play here (like possibly passing on a very close spot to stay this deep at a $500 max game)?

Hand 4: (Non Hand call)

High Hand Promotion in effect which pays out $400 to the highest hand made very half hour. A guy at the caller's table makes quad 5s with about 10 minutes left in the half hour for the current best high hand. There are only 8 or so current active tables in the room. The winning player asks if anyone wants to buy out his high hand for $200 (50% of the payout) with 10 minutes left. An older guy accepts. A minute later the quads guy takes a phone call, racks up and leaves without saying anything. The casino will not involve themselves in this player agreement. The caller isn't sure if the winning high hand player can come back later to collect the full $400 and the caller is from out of town so doesn't know if the players that made the agreements are regs.
