CHART in Tivoli: 29 August – 22 September 2024

CHART, the leading Nordic event for contemporary art, will stage its twelfth edition from 29 August to 1 September 2024 at Kunsthall Charlottenborg in Copenhagen, bringing together exhibitors from across the Nordic region, creating a single-entry point into the best of the region's gallery scene. Focusing on high-quality, curated presentations, CHART 2024 will feature an art fair, an expanded Book & Print fair, and a dynamic public programme of exhibitions, talks, performances, screenings, live music, and architectural projects. As a non-profit foundation, CHART is committed to connecting and expanding the Nordic arts community through curated initiatives, promoting sustainability, and Nordic aesthetics in all their diversity.

This year's edition will centre on 'New Voices in the Nordics', shining a spotlight on the individuals and ideas whose impact is growing within the Nordic art scene today. The programme will highlight artists who are exploring groundbreaking ideas and materials, new galleries that offer a platform for these approaches, institutions that are reflecting on their roles, and collectors who are rethinking what it means to collect contemporary art in our current social climate.

Curated presentations by a fresh group of emerging and established galleries

This year's art fair will bring together 35 exhibitors from across the Nordic region, including a new lineup of galleries including CFHILL and Wilson Saplana Gallery, who will both be exhibiting at CHART for the first time, as well as Andréhn-Schiptjenko, STANDARD (OSLO), and OSL contemporary. Highlights include a large-scale new sculpture by Danish artist Nina Beier co-presented by Croy Nielsen and STANDARD (OSLO) and a presentation of works by Greenlandic artist Inuuteq Storch, who is representing Denmark at the 2024 Biennale di Venezia, alongside works by French artist Sophie Calle at Wilson Saplana Gallery. Andréhn-Schiptjenko will showcase a solo presentation of works by American sculptor Tony Matelli.

Celebrating 10 Years of CHART Architecture

To commemorate the 10th anniversary of CHART Architecture, CHART will present a new curated selling exhibition, featuring contributions by each of the galleries participating at the fair, showcasing established international names alongside an emerging generation of 'New Voices in the Nordics'. The exhibition will take place in a purpose built large-scale architectural pavilion, which will be installed in the courtyard for the duration of the fair, conceptualised specifically to propose an alternative to the 'white cube' gallery format and responding to the theme of 'Neo Nordic Architecture'.

The pavilion's design was selected by an expert jury following an open-call inviting teams of emerging architects to submit proposals for the structure. This year marks the most ambitious CHART Architecture to date, with just one monumental pavilion being constructed. The exhibition will survey the latest developments in the region's art and architectural scenes, whilst also exploring how architectural space impacts the way we encounter contemporary art. The exhibition symbolises CHART's commitment towards uniting the worlds of contemporary art and architecture.

Julie Quottrup Silbermann, Director of CHART, says: "We are thrilled to commemorate the 10th anniversary of CHART Architecture this year with our most ambitious brief yet, creating the biggest pavilion to date, that will act as an extended exhibition space at the fair. We wanted to spotlight the important role of architecture in exhibiting contemporary art and how these two practices work together. It's an exciting milestone that speaks to our ongoing commitment to innovation at the intersection of art and architecture."

A brand-new series of site-specific works at CHART in Tivoli

For the third consecutive year, CHART will present a new exhibition of site-specific artworks in the iconic amusement park, Tivoli Gardens. CHART in Tivoli continues to challenge the traditional art fair format, bringing contemporary art to new audiences in unexpected settings. Confirmed artists for CHART in Tivoli include the revered Danish artist, Per Kirkeby, whose work will be shown posthumously in Tivoli for the first time, with a monumental bronze sculpture. Additionally, the exhibition will feature works by Jacob Dahlgren, Rose Eken, Michael Johansson, and Jens Settergren.

Expanding the Programme: Book & Print Fair, Talks, Screenings, Music and Performances

For CHART 2024, CHART Book Fair will return to Festsalen at Charlottenborg but with a new identity as CHART Book & Print Fair, showcasing a diverse range of printed materials from leading publishers across the region. This expansion reflects CHART's commitment to promoting diverse forms of artistic expression within the Nordic art scene.

CHART has expanded the concept of the traditional art fair into a cultural event that combines contemporary art, architecture, design, book and print publishing, with public programming that reaches a wide audience. The tradition of a generous public programme continues with performances and live music in the courtyards of Charlottenborg, free and open for everyone. This year will also see CHART offer a series of public performances taking place in the areas surrounding Nyhavn and Kongens Nytorv in the centre of the city during CHART.
