Logline: Many of the most iconic and original aesthetic looks of the 1980s – from David Bowie to Miami Vice – were created by Antony Clavet, a self-educated outsider from rural Canada whose trailblazing career as a hair and makeup designer was cut short by his tragic death.

A man and a woman are shown in a desert landscape under a blue sky with white clouds. The man, on the right, is kneeling and blowing into a large, light-colored conch shell. He wears a grey t-shirt, dark pants, a baseball cap, and a colorful beaded necklace. The woman, on the left, is kneeling and looking down. She wears a blue top and a colorful beaded necklace. The background features several dead, bleached tree branches.

Logline: To fulfill a dying wish, a filmmaker retraces her mother's legacy as an Indigenous activist and journalist, bringing to light 500 years of Taino resistance and igniting her own reclamation.

A woman and a young girl are shown in a snowy, overcast landscape. The woman, on the right, wears a blue parka with a fur-lined hood and sunglasses. The girl, on the left, wears a light blue jacket and a grey beanie with a small logo. They are both looking down at a smartphone held by the girl. The background is a vast, flat, snow-covered area under a grey sky.
