Funding and Legislation

2023 Trails Capacity Program Awardees Announced!

American Trails is excited to announce that we have been able to award funding to seven more trail projects in early 2023 as an extension of our 2022 Trail Capacity Program. We are thrilled to continue our partnership with the Ford Bronco Wild Fund to support trail stewardship, research, and training projects across America. "These projects in the Northeast, Midwest, and West were selected based on their excellent project applications, relevant, high-impact work, and representation of areas of the country that we were not able to support in 2022," says Cathy Corlett, Trail Fund Director at American Trails. As of March 2023, we are proud to have awarded over $120,000 of support to a total of 14 trail projects in North America. Explore these projects in greater detail on our interactive map. Find out more>>

Trails and Conservation

Dear Future Girl Conservationist
The world needs science, and science needs women and girls. It’s your time and you are not alone! There is a community of women in many fields of science who are here for you. They can give you words of wisdom and encouragement to get past tough obstacles to succeed and keep you going. You go girl! Click on the arrow to view this video from the National Park Service’s Dare to Imagine Series.

March is Women’s History Month – commemorating and encouraging the study, observance, and celebration of the vital role of women in American history. In some cases, their legacy lives on in the names of trails that are used and loved by communities today.
Featured National Recreation Trail: Grandma Gatewood Memorial Hiking Trail, Ohio

Emma "Grandma" Gatewood was the first woman to solo hike the Appalachian Trail. Gatewood participated in many famous hikes, but her favorite was a six-mile section of trail in Hocking Hills State Park in Ohio. This section was designated as the Grandma Gatewood Memorial Trail in January 1981. Find out more ››
