FROM OCEAN PLASTIC TO FABRIC

MARINE DEBRIS Timeline of Biodegradation

The Greenscreen Sea-TeX™ Project aims to recover shoreline plastic trash and turn it into fabrics!

Recycled programs are occurring throughout the world as we speak, sorting and processing recovered plastics from beaches, remote coastlines, inland waterways and the surrounding local communities where plastics are commonly incinerated or landfilled. Turning ocean plastic into fabric is both inspiring and environmentally friendly.

The created Greenscreen Sea-TeX™ screen fabric is semi-transparent, available in 5 colours and is also Fire Retardant.

X6

It is estimated that we have six times more plastic than plankton in our oceans

CAN WE MAKE A DIFFERENCE?

Yes! With the average window size at 1.86m, averaging 5 blinds per home x 500 homes would use 580kg of recovered ocean plastic.
